Police officials who attempted to lay hands on McBride yesterday were unable to locate him. His offices were deserted and only a watchman was ing. found on the premises who stated that Mr. McBride had gone out of town. The facts of the case as gleaned by reporters were that McBride and Graves became engaged in a heated argument involving the name of a woman supposed to be Lucy Trevor the popular cabaret entertainer at the Cubist.

Whether or not this was true could not be ascertained, but the earlier facts in the case point strongly to this as the cause of the tragedy. It seems as though a waiter in the Cubist in the employ of Graves has for some time been openly selling dope and drugs to addicts. Although never caught in th act, his air of cautiousness made him the center of suspicion by the local authorities. It had been noised about for several weeks past that both McBride and Graves were in love with the Trevor woman, and that the men had become engaged in altercations shortly before the death of the Attempts to learn the whereabouts of McBride failed yesterday. These are a few of the facts of which you will learn more when you see Clara Kimball Young in her latest and greatest photodrama. "The Worldly Madonna," which will be shown at the Washington Theater tonight.

ALLEGED WHISKY RUNNERS CAPTURED WITH THE BOOZE

Eight Men, Quantity of Liquor and Two Automobiles Are Taken By Dry Officers.

Lexington, Ky., Oct. 19.-Eight men, 455 gallons of whisky, four automobiles, a speed truck and a small arsenal of firearms were captured early this morning by federal prohibition agents from Lexington and Louisville at the Perryville bridge in Boyle county, following a gun fight in which forty or fifty shots were fired. Nobody was injured on either side.

The eight men were brought to Lex ington and lodged in jail. They were to be arraigned before United States Commissioner Charles N. Wiard this afternoon on charges of conspiracy to violate the national prohibition act and of transporting whisky. The cargo of 410 gallons of high proof red whisky was taken to Frankfort for storage. The remainder of the catch, forty-five gallons of moonshine, was poured out where it was captured.

EIGHT YEARS IS PENALTY FLEMING MAN MUST PAY

Jury In Fleming Circuit Court Finds William Helphenstine Guilty of Slaying Clarence Gardner and Sentences Him to Pen.

A jury in the Fleming Corcuit Court ate Wednesday found William Helphenstine, prominent Fleming county merchant, guilty of slaying of Clarence Gardner, well known farmer of the Hillsboro neighborhood, and fixed his punishment at confinement in the state penitentiary at Frankfort, for a period of eight years.

It developed in the evidence of the case that Helphenstine slew Gardner in sudden heat and passion during an argument over the settlement of an account at the Helphenstine store and more directly over the nunishment of Gardner's son by the father in the store. The lad had purchased fifty five cents worth of tobacco at the store which he had ordered charged to his father. In the settlement Gardner disputed the fifty-five cents and when told it was for tobacco for his son, the father punished the child and the merchant remonstrated with him for his severe punishment of the lad which started the argument which nded fatally.

Both Helphenstine and Gardner vere men of splendid reputations and vere good citizens. The affair was nost lamentable.

"DEBT DRIVE" STARTS

The American Bankers' Convention has been turned into a gigantic attempt to convince the warders of America's ready cash that the allied debts must be forgotten or reduced. That is the convention Maysville's show places next Spring

The 11,000 visitors, big and little town and village bankers, are being given a "new outlook" on these debts. They are expected to go "back home" and mold sentiment, reduction sentiment, cancel-

Thomas W. Lamont, of the House of Morgan, and President Thomas B. McAdams, of the Bankers' Association, were the "leadoff" men for the "ne woutlook." These were no "doubting Thomases," these two keynoters. They asked that America "write off" a great part of the $11,000,000,000 in loans and extend the remainder for a generation. Backing them up was the Right Honorable Reginald McKenna, ex-vice chancellor of the British empire and head of Britain's largest bank, the London Joint City and Midland. He told us we must wait for our money and that some of it would

Here, then, is the start of the real campaign to convince America that it is not only "moral" but expedient for us to forget about these loans. A careful "build-up" has been going on all summer. Every returning ship carried an international banker or financial heavyweight, urging that we forget and forgive. Propaganda has spouted from New York and risen from London as from a fountain.

There is a resolution in Congress asking an international economic adjustment. The National Council for the Reduction of Armaments is out with a plea to cut German reparations from thirtythree billions to as little as four billions and to adjust all international debts "in the light of all the facts."

The armament for the big drive is about ready. Bankers are being handed their arguments for reduction and cancellation. The Vanderlips and Warburgs have spoken their pieces, and most of the international banking group believe the time has come to wait upon Congress. The cancellation-reduction fur is about to fly.

Pressure, steady, powerful and relentless, is about to be applied America, however, will need a lot of convincing. Americans know that while this $11,000,000,000 may be worth no more than fifty cents on the dollar, we are going along paying interest on every cent of it and that we Americans must pay back every dollar of it.

It is not forgotten that the Government got it from Liberty Bond buyers, who bought "till it hurt," and that the principal and interest been in effect when the engineers laid on these bonds must be paid to the final red cent. If we are to for- off some of the sidewalks over which give our creditors, in whole or in part, then for the second time we must raise that money in taxes and duties, and all the panjandrum, high-talk and financial gestures between ow and Kingdom Come will 28 PORKERS GAIN 1,030 not release us.

The bankers may be convinced, but America is not convinced. Not yet. There is a frank distrust of those bankers who reaped fat profits and took juicy commissions on war loans and war purchases made by foreign nations and who are now so avidly anxious that we scale down our claims, go on carrying the load and watch our nev loans made to this same "busted" crowd.

The long-headed, practical common sense of the America that is far from Wall Streets and Lombard Streets of the world must be reached and converted. That is to be the job of the banker. It will and swine specialists of the College of not be easy.-Philadelphia Public Ledger.

DESPITE CRUSADES

Despite police crusades, from time to time proclaimed and for time in each instance prosecuted, automobile "accidents" in Louis ville continue at the usual rate.

Eternal viviglance, and not occasional crusades, may be depended upon to reduce the scope of the evil of reckless driving, out of which grow a large majority of automobile killings. But until juries can be gotten to consider soberly the fundamental cause of such tragedies, and persuaded to deal accordingly with those who are guilty of causing death by violence ,the killings will continue despite periodic crusades or constant vigilance.

Selfishness, cock-sureness, deliberate disregard of the rights of others eliminated, the problem of the safety of streets and country roads would be solved.

Careful drivers rarely cause accidets. But the most careful driver, like the pedestrian, may be killed at any street corner or on any country road by the driver who disregards speed regulations because he is confident that he can avoid accidents, and who always is willing to swear in court that he was proceeding slowly and cautiously at the time his machine struck another machine amidships and pitched it over a fence, or took a pedectrian unawares and dragged him half a block.

Crusades are not making the streets safe. To a good job, every day, by the police as seekers for violators of the law, a good job every time by jurors when persons who have cause death are tried must be added before it will be greatly less dangerous to use public thoroughfares than it is to be a soldier during a war.-Courier-Journal.

MEX. TAXES

American oil companies operating in Mexico are still at loggerheads with the Mexican federal and state governments. The Mexican appetite for taxes seem to offer little obstacle to their increase. Apparently the recognition of Mexico by this government will not be an event of the near future.

KINDLY NOTE

The Democratic state convention of Michigan officially commended Mr. Ford for his stand on the coal controversy. In other words they approved Ford's action in throwing 100,000 men out of work in order that his personal income of $500,000 a day might not bee lessened.

At current rates of exchange it seems hardly worth the effort to work your head off in order to make your mark in the world.

BEST METHOD FOR CURING MEAT WILL BE EXPLAINED

Lexington, Ky. - Best methods for the home curing of meats will be explained to farmers in many Kentucky counties during the coming winter by means of meetings and demonstrations to be held by the extension division of the College of Agriculture, according to an announcement by Grady Sellards, swine specialist of the college who will have charge of the work. The meetings, which already have been started and which will continue until the first of February next year, will be confined to the eastern and western parts of the state. Curing by use of salt and sorghum molasses, which is one of the oldest and most successful nethods known, will be advocated through the meetings. At the present time, almost two-thirds of the farmers in the state cure their meat by the use of salt alone.

The method which will be advocated already has been tested out and found

Some of the points which Mr. Sellards will stress in the meetings are: 1 -Be sure that the carcass is Thoroughly cooled out as animal heat promotes rapid spoiling. 2-Trim hams, shoulders and bacon neatly. Bat edges do not make a god cured product. They should be rendered int lard r made into sausage. 3-Put a heavy layer of salt on each layer of meat, or bury the meat in salt, as it is being packed into a large churn or oak barrel. 4-Two days for each pound are required for a single piece to cure. That is ,a 10-pound ham should cure 20 days. A curing day is any one in which the temperature is above freezing. 5 - After the meat is removed fromoved from the salt, brush off the crusty layer, wash in luke warm water, hang up and let drip for 12 hours. 6-Smoke with hard wood, hickory preferred, for about six days or until the meat is an amber color. 7-Apply warm sorghum molasses to meat until all pared are filled. 9-Let hang several days before making second application of molasses. 9-Wrap with heavy paper, then with muslin cloth. Make insect proof. 10-Hang in dark,

SECOND CONVICTION IS PEN SENTENCE, SAYS COURT

Court of Appeals Holds That Second Conviction Under Dry Law Carries With Term in State Penientiary.

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 17. - On a second conviction for unlawful possession of whisky the punishment is confinement in the penitentiary and not a jail sentence, fine and peace bond.

This opinion was handed down today by Chief Justice Hurt of the Court of Appeals in dismissing the petition of the City of Bowling Green for a writ of prohibition to restrain County Judge Charles Drake from issuing a writ of haebous corpus to Les Turner who on the second conviction of un lawful possession of whisky was fined $300, given a pail sentence of sixty days and placed under a $5,000 peace

In view of the fact that the law provides a penitentiary sentence for the second conviction of unlawfully having in possession intoxicating liquors the Court of Appeals held that the police court did not have the power to require bond of Turner on the second onviction and that order being void Turner's confinement in jail under it was not authorized. Therefore, the court said, the County Judge, had jursdiction to grant a writ of haebus corpus to discharge him.
